THE STATE NORMAL BOARD.

The Biennial Report Submitted to the State Superintendent.

A VERY FLATTERING SHOWING.

Some Facts About the Railroad Commission-Opening of the Firemen's Charley Fair Concert-Other Lincoln Happenings.

The state normal board of education have handed their bjennial report to the state superintendent. The report has just been compiled by the board meeting held at the state normal school this week, and which meeting was attended by B. E. B. Kennedy of Omaha, J. W. Love of Fremont, J. T. Spencer of Dakota City, C. W. Kaley of Red Cloud, and Church Howe of Auburn, all members of the normal school board. Their report will prove a very attering one for this state institution and slow a remarkably good progress in the growth of the school and the work it is doing. Mr. J. W. Love was in Lincoln yesterday on his way home from this session of the board, and is very enthustastic over the school and the present order of progress that it is maintaining. The location of the school is in the quiet little village of Peru, in the eastern part of Nemaha county, the buildings being situated on a high and commanding bluff, surrounded with handsome grounds and overlooking three states. Members of the board consider the location admirable in every way for good, thorough and attentive work, removed as it is from towns filled with saloons and yet being in a village are equal to all wants of the school and furnishing exceptional society. During the past two years the buildings have been greatly increased, a large wing having been added to the main building and some 530,000 expended in substantial improvements of this character, and the board asks comparisons of the work done for the money in connection with any other improvements in the state. As an evidence of the necessity existing for new buildings, more room and more accommodations the enrollment is the best testimony, the increase in the past four years being from 250 to 476, most of which substantial gain has been nucled in the two years being from 250 to 476, most of which substantial gain has been nucled in the two years last past. The average atlendance at each term the present year has been nearly 350, which is nearly as large a number as the buildings will accommodate even under their increased capacity of the past year. In the year past there is from towns filled with saloons and yet number as the buildings will accommodate even under their increased capacity of the past year. In the year past there have been 28 ladles curolled, and 175 gentlemen, seventy-six of whom are in the higher or complete course in the school fine balance in the elementary departments. The average age of the students in attendance is nincteen years. To show the distribution of the students over the state, forty counties are represented and there are students in the school from sixteen states in all. The total number enrolled the past year from Nebraska was 455, leaving twenty-one coming from outside states and as non resident students. Of the counties in the state Nemalia and Otoe send the largest number of students their representation in the school being nearly equal. Douglas has a good attendance, as has also Cass, Richardsot, Johnson and countes adjacent, while there are students enrolled from as far west as Red Willow and Hall counties and from as far orib gs Pierce county. There are at present ten instructors in the school, including the business and musical classes, and outside the principal their report that owing to the rapid increase in attendance that at least two additional instructors will be a necessity at once. The board express in their report no estimate for any new baildings the coming year, stating that for the two years at appropriation of $39,500 will be necessary to conduct the school, but $5,000 of this will be used in completing the dorantory. The only complaint that the members of the board had to make was that it was hard work in some instances for students to get accommodations in the way of rooms and board in the village, and the member of the board volunteering this statement requested that it be mentioned.

THE RALLROAD COMMISSION
report that has journeyed through the unitioished part of the capitol building to the office of the governor is a good deal improved upon from the mess of melange that was prepared before the change in the board. What reception it may receive is wholly to be determined in future. Liberal extracts from the report, however, will be interesting, and presumably point out one of the pathways that will lead to a free for all discussion of the railroad problem in the coming session. One of the extracts from the report is as follows: "Your commissioners doubt not the legal and constitutional right of the legislature of this state to fix rates of charges on freight and passengers for all traile arising and terminating in this state. And we recommend that the board of railway commissioners be invested with legal power and authority to decide upon and determine what shall be deemed prima facterates for the transportation of freight over one or more railronds from and to all points wholly within the state of Nebraska, and the rate of charges when so fixed by the commissioners shall be taken and deemed as reathe rate of charges when so fixed by the con missioners shall be taken and deemed as rea-sonable rates until otherwise decided by the courts of this state upon appeal to said courts, and when the court has decided what is a reasonable rate such decision and rate so fixed shall be taken and deemed a reasonable ixed shall be taken and deemed a reasonable rate." The report discusses at considerable length the long and short hand problem, and discusses the features of the Reagan and Cullom bills on this question. The reportalso, upon the grounds of the rapidly increasing and changing population of the state, believes that the power in the commission can adapt itself to these changes by the exercise of discretion and ax reasonable rates accordingly. The report recites that in the opinion of the commission many and indeed most of the rates of charges in the state of Nebraska for the transportation of freight by the act of 1881 are now too high; that the population of the state has greatly increased and the volume of traffic correspondingly, thereby enabling the tailroads to carry freight at a less rate of charges and without diminution of carnings or profits, and therefore the commiscarnings or profits, and therefore the commis-sion deem it advisble and of importance to the state of Nebraska that the act of 1881.

the state of Nebraska that the act of 1881, known as the Doane law, be repeated.

The commission recommend that the act creating the commission be so amended as to confer upon the commissioners the power and authority to determine what shall be deemed a trasonable rate of charges for the transportation of freights between all points wholly within the state of Nebraska, and over one or more roads, leaving the different roads over which the freight is carried to settle the division of char es between themselves unless they fail to agree in the work, when the commission is to decide for them. In the opinion expressed in the report it is also deemed advisable that the law require the roads in the state to carry the commission here's escretaries and clerks of the commission free of charge when travel-the law require the roads in the state to carry the commissioners' secretaries and clerks of the commission free of charge wheel traveling in the performance of their duties, notding that transportation of the commission should not be as a compliment, but as the performance of a legal obligation. Advached to the voluminous report is a minority report on the part of Secretary Roagen, stating that if these modifications of the law, giving the commissioners bewer to fix rates and power to act is cases of complaint are not indeed that he, as one of the board of railway rommissioners, favors the repeal of the law.

The convention of county superintendents, after a large amount of work, adjourned yesternay and departed homeward. A great many recommendations of changes in the school laws were passed upon and the convention passed resolutions highly complimentary to the retiring state superintendent. The intelligent compositor or his half-brother, the telegraphic operator, so mutilated the names of the officers of the base ball association of Lincoln as telegraphed again, that the officers may recognize themselves: President, C. W. Mosher; vice president, Frank L. Sheldon; secretary, J. H. Threwtreasurer, J. E. Baum; directors, Jeff W. Glass, R. L. McDonald, and R. H. Townly.
